

GENERAL SIR SAM HUGHES DEAD AFTER LONG FIGHT

Had Remarkable Career, and Figured Largely in the Military Life of Canada for Many Years.

Lindsay, Ont., August 24.—Sir Sam Hughes, former minister of militia in the federal government, died at 1 o'clock this morning, standard time at his home here.

BRAVE FIGHT
Sir Sam Hughes has been in failing health ever since his return from the old country last winter. He made this trip despite the earnest advice of his physician, who realized that his health needed extreme care.

In April last, in Ottawa, he suffered the second attack of pernicious anaemia and was constantly attended by two physicians, who at many periods of his illness regarded his condition as hopeless. That he ever lived to see the session and return to Lindsay, was in the nature of a miracle. For weeks his condition was so grave that the least thing might have turned the scale and yet he lingered on, optimistic and interested in everybody about him, despite his extreme weakness. His knightship of blood was given him while in Ottawa, and one son after he returned to Lindsay. All three were regarded as successful, and after each Sir Sam's feeble condition seemed improved somewhat. Some few weeks ago the former minister of militia suffered a severe relapse, his physicians holding out no hope for his recovery. This occurred during extremely hot weather, and with persistent rain or days Sir Sam rallied again. He recovered sufficiently to take an interest in current events, and on one or two occasions festively remarked to his relatives that he was "by no means dead yet."

He took another bad turn on August 9, but since then had rallied and last week was strong enough to sit up in his bed.

On Monday the former minister began to sink again and was unconscious all yesterday. His friends realized that the end was near, and a cable was sent to his son, Gen. Garnet Hughes, in England last night.

Sir Sam did not regain consciousness during the night and died peacefully. Those at the bedside when the end came were Lady Hughes, Mrs. (Colonel) Green, of Chatham, daughter; Miss Aileen S. Hughes, daughter; Dr. McAlpine, brother-in-law; Miss Burke, of Bowmanville, sister-in-law; Bernice McAlpine, nephew, and T. H. Simpson, an old friend of Sir Sam.

The brothers and sisters of Sir Sam are Major General John Hughes of Bowmanville; James Hughes Toronto, now lecturing in England; Brig. Gen. St. Pierre Hughes, Superintendent of prisons, Ottawa; Mrs. Scott, wife of the late Prof. Scott, Toronto; Mrs. Dr. J. A. McAlpine, Lindsay, and Mrs. McDonald, of the United States, formerly Mrs. Robert Thornton, of Lindsay.

SIR SAM'S CAREER
The late Sir Sam Hughes was for nearly thirty years a member of the Dominion parliament and took an active part in the political, educational, social and business life of the Dominion, yet he is associated most prominently in the public mind with the profession of arms, and his place in history will turn upon his career as war minister of Canada. When a boy of 17 he volunteered to aid in the suppression of the Fenian Raid. Soon after that he joined the Canadian militia and was closely identified with its growth and development for the rest of his life. In 1897 he was lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-fifth battalion. At the outbreak of the South African war in 1899 he was a member of parliament and lieutenant-colonel to boot, but the combination did not bring for him the place he thought he should have in the Canadian contingent being organized for imperial service in that far distant background. He was permitted to go with the contingent as "special" or "attached" officer. The scenes abroad the troops on which he sailed with the Canadian contingent at that time are re-echoed in the Canadian parliament for half a generation. However, the education Col. Hughes received in Africa and served with the British troops there, receiving several decorations for his services, was not in vain. He was for years president of the Dominion Rifle association and the Canadian Rifle association, and was a small arms. In 1914 he became major-general, and two years later, as the result of great war service, which is of quite recent famous memory, he was made lieutenant-general by the two-year government. His knightship was gazetted in 1915.

ENTERS GOVERNMENT
In October, 1911, Sam Hughes, M.P. for Victoria and Halliburton, entered the Dominion government as minister of militia and defence, serving until his resignation in November, 1916. The first three years of his service were prior to the war and occupied mainly in expanding and properly equipping the permanent forces and militia of the Dominion. During this time also he witnessed some of the great military movements of the world, visited Belgium and portions of France, where he was satisfied that a coming era would be found, it was not, however, till the outbreak of the great war that his enthusiasm and talents had full play. All Canada stood more or less dumbfounded when his minister of militia called the mother country to arms, a contingent of 35,000 soldiers within months. This truly remarkable feat of mobilizing, training, equipping and despatching the "originals," 35,000 strong, was accomplished, however, largely through the unconquerable and dominating influence of the Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia. This was done at the famous Valcartier encampment, and was a feat pronounced by the late Lord Roberts to be without a parallel in the military history of the world.

DYNAMIC ENERGY
From August, 1914, until November, 1916, General Hughes worked with dynamic energy in carrying out Canada's share in the great war. During that time of excitement and tumult many controversies raged over questions of policy, but the great services rendered by the dead soldier are abundantly attested by his having raised and equipped, during that time, more than 400,000 men out of Canada's total population of between seven and eight million. It was in recognition of his services as Canadian minister of war that he was in June, 1915, created by his majesty a Knight Commander of the Bath.

Sir Sam Hughes was born in Darlington, Durham county, Ont., on January 8, 1853. He went through the public and high schools and the Toronto university, being a brilliant student, and was also famous as a lacrosse player. He chose the profession of teaching and became a lecturer at the Toronto Collegiate Institute. All agreed that he had marked talent for teaching, but he was ambitious to enter public life, and in 1885 moved to Lindsay, Ont., where he became the owner and editor of the Lindsay Warrier.

KILLED WIFE; THOUGHT HER A BURGLAR

Mistaking her for a burglar, Howard Swope killed his wife, Lesta, mother of two babies, with a shotgun at Detroit, May 8, 1933. He went through the police, and after telling his story in the prosecutor's office, was released on his personal recognizance. Swope said he and his wife, about two o'clock in the morning, heard a noise, and he fired a shot at the noise. He found himself with a gun. Through the kitchen window he saw a shadow and a hand. He fired a second shot, and the wife's room and shouted that he had shot a thief and was going to call the police. He then discovered that his wife was not in bed. A neighbor found the body in the yard, and Swope got up to investigate, finding back at close range. The police were called, and Swope, in a state of collapse, was taken to the hospital. He was two years and a girl seven weeks old were made motherless by what the authorities are convinced was an accident.

A seven cent cash fare is being established on the Toronto street railway, commencing September 1.

RANCHING FOR YOUR HEALTH

(Wall Street Journal)
One of the saddest stories of the recent collapse in prices was told by a Chicago broker with a large acquaintance among stock farmers. One of his friends who owned a sheep ranch shipped several hundred sheep to Chicago and was offered $5 little for them that he came on to adjust the matter. Freight, commissions and selling charges just about absorbed all his receipts, and finally he sat down at the desk, he felt the need of refreshment and went out to a neighboring restaurant, where he dined on two lamb chops that cost him just seventy-five cents, and while eating them he reflected mournfully that he was paying slightly more per chop than he had received per sheep.

More than 1000 lives, it is feared have been lost in the rioting in the Malabar district, British India, according to a dispatch received in London.

AT SUNSET HOUR

From out unbarred, southern gates of gold,
Across the sky a wondrous glory shines,
And glimmering faint, serene, and silver cold—
A star above the pines.
The night winds blow from valleys hushed and dim,
And bring the murmur of the far-off sea,
While o'er the tranquil world's end golden rim Steals twilight noiselessly.
The traffic and the turmoil of the day
And all its fever and unrest are o'er;
And now there is a little time to pray
And find our souls once more.
A little time to shut out from our hearth
All evil things that harbor unconfessed.
Before the sunset splendor all departs,
And night-time brings us rest.
A little time wherein, if so we will,
Our souls may hearken to the Higher Power,
And learn the lessons in the moments still.
That come at sunset hour.

FIFTY MILLION DOLLAR SWINDLE BEING PROBED

Investigation by U.S. Federal Agents into the Activities of Alleged Head of International Frauds

Chicago, August 26.—Investigation of United States federal agents into the activities of Charles W. French, alleged head of a $50,000,000 "swindle gang" has been extended to Canada, it was asserted here tonight. Information is being sought in the Dominion about several companies which French is alleged to have organized.

The names and capitalization of some include:
Victoria, B.C., The Pacific Co., $1,000,000; The Pacific Bank, $2,000,000; The Pacific Railways Co., $5,000,000; The Pacific Trust Co., $2,500,000.
Ottawa: The Atlantic Bank, $1,000,000; The Atlantic Steel Co., $1,000,000; The Atlantic Commercial Co., $1,000,000.

With nearly $30,000,000 in stocks, bonds, notes and other securities—some good and some bad—in their possession, federal agents today renewed their search for the end of the golden rainbow which John Worthington, Charles W. French and their associates are alleged to have spread across the United States and Canada in what the agents believe to be one of the greatest "swindle trusts on record."

Colonel John W. Clinchin, assistant United States district attorney in charge of investigation, fixed $500,000 as a conservative minimum for the total operations.

Twenty companies—said to have been organized by French with a capital stock of $21,000,000, and in which he was selling stock, are under investigation.

REBELS IN INDIA ON THE MOVE

London, August 25.—A Reuter dispatch from Calcutta, India, says the Moplah bands of insurgents are now concentrating around Tirur and Panani, apparently bent on mischief. Several thousand looted a police station and public office and carried off munitions. They liberated prisoners and held up 17 policemen; whom they forced to remove their uniforms. A green flag bearing the Turk's emblem is stated to have been conspicuous during the disturbances.
A Reuter dispatch from Lahore, India, reported that a mass meeting, presided over by the Nationalist leader Talaib Lalpat Rai, passed a resolution stating that "while the wounds resulting from martial law in Punjab are still unhealed, the Khilafat pledges are unredeemed and famine conditions prevail throughout the country the people of Lahore are not prepared to welcome a welcome to the Prince of Wales," who is due in India on a visit this fall.
Two speakers opposed the resolution, urging that the prince should be given an opportunity to see present condition of the country, and expressing confidence that he would redress wrongs.
The Lahore municipal committee also decided to boycott the prince's visit.

Switzerland in Canada

The Home of a Swiss Guide at Edelweiss, B.C. A very successful attempt at introducing the Swiss-style of architecture into the Canadian Rockies has been carried out at the village of Edelweiss. Miniature chalets of the Alps here blend in with the Canadian landscape in the side-hills above Golden as though part of it. The "Swiss-lines" of the little cottages here are further enhanced by the use of rustic bridges and hand-railings leading up to the cottages tiering one above another ever higher in true "excelsior" fashion. It is customary in the very nature of his swift passing for the tourist sitting by the window of the speeding "through train" to catch only a glimpse of this hybrid mountain village. Yet, the natural human interest felt in the Red Swiss guide at Lake Louise who safely conducts you to The Great Glacier, to The Valley of the Ten Peaks and to the other of those entrancing "trails" focussing around "The Lakes in the Clouds" has often have aroused your curiosity as to where these wonderful mountaineers live when off duty. And you have found yourself speculating as to the home-life of the "Guide" so calmly and with such assurance playing the hazardous double-roll of "Trail-Master" and "Trail-Master."

This foreigner in a specialist. And the fact that his knowledge of our own mountains is so much greater than the successful Canadian guide has added interest. At the same time the Swiss Guide represents his mountaineering a gift of Switzerland to us. A happy gift indeed when one thinks of the friendly holding-out of experience gained in her mountains, a neighborly gift of knowledge which may help to interpret the Canadian Rockies in many of their most complicated and beautiful but "difficult" passages to us, who have so little time to learn the gnostic secrets of these marvellous "Rockies."

Travelling the human interest story of these Swiss Guides leads one straight to Edelweiss. Straight to its revelation of the established presence of the Swiss chalet in Canada. It leads one too, to a little family gathering of happy wives and little children. The happy life for the few of home given by the "Swiss-lines" which these their homes in the West, bear to the cottage, climbing the mountain-side, among evergreen and alders and brothers, still live. No one would claim that Edelweiss is perfect from the architectural viewpoint. That would be absurd. Rather it has the happy life imperfections which must ever attend beginnings.

WHY DO BIRDS MIGRATE?

By Beaton Thompson. Where do the birds stay in winter? They go south, everybody knows, but exactly where? The authorities have undertaken to find out exactly where the various species of wild birds go when they migrate in the fall. It is an old story for authorities to do, but there are sound reasons for it.

When a wild duck leaves its summer quarters in Alaska and starts for its winter home in a warm latitude, it neglects to leave a forwarding address for authorities to do, but there are sound reasons for it.

The same thing happens in the case of a wild swan which, in the neighborhood of the Arctic circle, and like-wise, in that of the wild goose, which, having established a nursery in Canada somewhere and taught its young ones to fly, departs in autumn for the United States or Mexico. There are very practical reasons why it is important to know just where the various species of wild ducks, geese and swans breed, and where they spend their winters. For these valuable game birds are threatened with extermination, and it is necessary that they shall be protected if they are not to disappear altogether and forever.

The federal government has taken up the matter seriously and we have migratory birds for the protection of ducks and other feathered creatures. But, in order that measures for their preservation shall be effective, it is requisite that more exact and more comprehensive knowledge shall be obtained in regard to their habits, their travels and their whereabouts at different seasons of the year.

No species of bird can long survive if it is systematically slaughtered on its breeding grounds. But if lacunae are to be maintained, it must also be protected on its feeding grounds, which may perhaps be in a remote part of the region where it builds its nests. Thus, for example, the blue-winged teal, beloved of sportsmen, breeds in Canada and spends the winter in South America. At both ends of its life, while its flocks are stationary and easily destroyed by wholesale, it must be safeguarded against other dangers, such as to escape utter and final destruction.

The much-prized canvasback, which is one of the great travellers, breeds all the way from Manitoba to the tributaries of Yukon river. It builds its nest just on the margin of a stream or lake. It spends the winter in the southern states, and on its return for every autumn passage, it is fed upon the wild celery of the Chesapeake and Carolina marshes. It is in this way that it is in the line of its migration, which is surely unfortunate, inasmuch as it is going north to breed, and every year a large number of them are killed in the process.

People all over the country are anxious to do the damage to the threat to our most valuable game birds, and are beginning to take a serious interest in the species which are being exterminated. Helped by societies of bird-lovers is making to protect them. The federal government has established a number of refuges, which are especially designed to protect them. MERCHANT TELLS OF A REMARKABLE CURE Writing from Maxco, Cal., A. J. Gillen, proprietor of a large department store at that place, says: "I have a cousin here who was in bed for three years, and did not get to a meal at any time. She had, five years ago, a severe attack of rheumatism, and she was in bed for three years, and did not get to a meal at any time. The wild geese that breed in the Canadian provinces build their nests in marshes, among reeds, and in some cases, in the open fields. The mother bird picks up her own body on banks of streams, and in marshes, among reeds, and in some cases, in the open fields. The mother bird picks up her own body on banks of streams, and in marshes, among reeds, and in some cases, in the open fields.

The wild swans, of which there are several American species, breed far north as three degrees beyond the Arctic circle, and spend the winters south, as far as Iowa and Minnesota. They look much like the domesticated geese, but attain larger size, the trumpets away sometimes reaching a weight of thirty pounds.

A vast area in the delta of the Yukon river, in the north-western corner of the province, is the winter home of the "white-fronted" geese, and many species of ducks. It is a vast area in the delta of the Yukon river, in the north-western corner of the province, is the winter home of the "white-fronted" geese, and many species of ducks.

In many parts of the west there are areas which are favorite resorts of ducks and other wild-footing fowl, and that is to say on the migration route. A number of these have been established by the government as "bird refuges," where the feathered migrants are not allowed to be disturbed by hunters. Some of the areas covered by desert reclamation projects have been set aside as "bird refuges," where the feathered migrants are not allowed to be disturbed by hunters.

It seems a puzzle to know how migrating birds are able to find their way over such immense distances. But to them, doubtless, as they fly at a steady height in their annual journeys, the earth beneath appears like a map on which, even in the night, by the light of moon and stars, they find their way. Rivers, valleys, mountain ranges and other topographical features are easily distinguishable and recognizable.

Some humming birds travel south in the autumn and north in the spring nearly 2,000 miles. And one

Sports on the Pacific Coast

Surly there is no centre in the world where one can get such a variety of summer sports as in Vancouver, B.C. There are several excellent beaches for bathing. There are half a dozen different lots of public tennis courts, within the city limits. There are several golf courses, baseball and lacrosse, a polo-ground at Brighouse Park, where recently the Vancouver team played teams from Kamloops and Calgary. On Saturday afternoon, nearly always finds a couple of cricket matches being played at the beautiful grounds at Brighouse Park.

But the most popular of all amusements in Vancouver are motor-boating and yachting. The harbor down by the Yacht-club is dotted with pleasure boats of every size. All the sailing boats turn out for the regatta held at various points along the coast. There are 10 "ketches," 25 foot boats of the "Cliff" class, the "Sir Tom," and the "Spirit" of the "B" class, the "Minerva," a mer's afternoon.

Yes, lumber is down—down to where a farmer can afford to build anything that can be made of lumber, even in the case of a low market on farm products.

Lumber was the last great commodity to go up and the first to come down.

TODAY LUMBER PRICES are down to where it is hard to see how they can go any lower.

BARN OR HOUSE or just some boards for fixing up around the place, the facts about lumber will appeal to any man or woman who believes in thrift and know-how.

COME IN TODAY and talk over your practical problems. We want to be helpful, and we welcome an opportunity to show you.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31st 1921

STARTING OUT WELL

The new government for Alberta is starting out well. The first big appointment, announced Monday, was that of Deputy Minister of Railways and Telephones, John Callaghan, of Calgary, being appointed to the position. Mr. Callaghan is a practical, level-headed, railway engineer of good repute, and should give good service. The second announcement was made by the Premier, Monday, in answer to a deputation that waited upon him, urging the construction of the Jasper highway to the coast, that the distressed citizens of the south country would receive the first consideration at the hands of the government, that the highway would receive consideration.

Good for the new government. Let us first face the troubles that exist. Face them manfully and well; it will be time enough then for us to deal with the new schemes that are being eternally cropping up.

ELEVATOR PROFITS

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Mr. W. J. Christie received somewhat cavalier treatment on his appearance before the Board of Grain Commissioners in the role of an anxious enquirer. The cause of his anxiety and inquiry is the belief that altogether abnormal profits are made by some, if not all of the Terminal Elevator companies.

Semi-legally, these are none of Mr. Christie's business. Neither are the business of the Grain Commissioners, nor of the Commission of Inquiry of the Dominion government, but purely that of the gentlemen who receive them and of the grain growers who pay them.

There is good ground for the argument that these profits are not the business of the Grain Commissioners. They are commissioned to fix a reasonable and just charge for the service and see that the service is rendered and the rates adhered to. Profit made otherwise does not come within their jurisdiction.

This, however, is hardly the point at issue here. When a representative citizen, who is a grain grower as well as a dealer, has evidence regarding the earnings and business of the Terminal Elevator companies, which does bear upon their charges and would justify the region and reduction of these, he is entitled to be heard, and the matters he brings forward go into in a sympathetic spirit by the Grain Commissioners.

The whole question is most emphatically a matter of the public interest. If it were not so, then there would be no Grain Commission, and no legislative supervision of terminal elevators. The Grain Commissioners are the public servants to represent and enforce this public interest, and they take too restricted a view of their functions and responsibilities when they exclude from their consideration any evidence which has bearing on the question of rates or practices.

Continual denial of open investigation is bound to give rise to suspicion of undue concealment. Such suspicion may be quite unjustifiable but it is inevitable. The Terminal Elevator companies and the grain interests connected with them are going the right way about things to subject themselves to an investigation in which prejudice and a predisposition to believe there is something wrong will supplant zeal for the public welfare to some extent.

RUSSIA'S IMPOVERISHMENT

New York Tribune—
And Russia had no Joseph—no even a Pharaoh, who, though despotic, was intelligent enough to seek an interpretation of the dream of the last king which devoured the fat king.

So what Secretary Hughes had declared as the progressive impoverishment of the masses of Russia has continued, and they have arrived at the present appalling tragedy. The consequences unescapably flowed from the conditions that were artificially established. Lenin's policy was not up to the level of that of the purril, which stores against future need. Lack of rain precipitated the famine, but its cause lies elsewhere. Bolshevik reduced production to the verge of extinction, and there was no reserve when nature turned slacker.

100-lb. sacks.

Little demand and not much offering; upland at country points, $14 to $16; Timothy, $20 to $23.

Market relaxed after slight recovery of weeks ago, and outlook slow. Pure—St. Louis sale starts in September, and prices likely to remain unchanged until then.

FUGITIVE FROM PONOKA SAFE IN THE TOLLER AGAIN

Edmonton, August 28.—John Gurdard Larson, a Canadian and alleged murderer who escaped from Ponoka asylum at daybreak yesterday morning, was recaptured at dusk last night at Mornington by the provincial police and is now on his way back to Ponoka. He travelled about fifteen miles before being retaken and was going toward Lacombe.

Somebody said the editor of the Pokokanaw Gazette, a few bottles of home brew. The same day he received for publication a wedding announcement and a notice of an auction sale.

Here are the results: "Win Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were divorced at public auction at my farm, one mile east of a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast, and two white calves, before a background of farm implements, too numerous to mention in the presence of about twenty guests, including two milk cows, six males and one heifer. Ray Jackson led the nuptial knot with 200 feet of red and blue and the bride couple left on one good John Deere gang plow, for an extended trip with terms to suit purchasers. They were at home to their friends with one good baby buggy and a few kitchen utensils after ten months from date of sale to responsible parties and some fifty chickens."—Exchange.

VIOLIN EXAMINATIONS

The following pupils were successful in passing the examination for violin held in Red Deer, June 22.—Kenneth F. Madison, Verna E. Pendergast, Arthur M. Wythe, John J. Clouston, Betty Mahany, Glynn Mahany, Lawrence L. McMahon, Gladys F. Trimble, Harry C. Blomwood, Clara J. J. Parker, Louis J. Shannon, Fred Vincent.

PUSH VS. PULL

R. Kimbrell in The Country Gentleman (P.M.).
Where one man succeeds, through push or pull, it is the verb, and not the noun, that counts. The driving wheels of a locomotive are not the front wheels. The front wheels of an automobile do not pull the back wheels push. Wherever power is found, something is found pushing.

The blade of corn does not come in to this world because some person pulls it in; but it gets there because it pushes. A good way to kill corn is to pull it up by the roots. Many a man has been injured by too much pull. The steam that moves the piston rod does not pull it, but goes behind it and shoves. A crowbar does not pull an object, it gets under it and pushes it.

Life is a pushing thing. Press down a sapling, torture it in any conceivable way, and instead of giving up, it will proceed to push its way out of the chafers.
Put a plant in a collar, and it will not complain about lack of pull but will do its best to push its tendrils in the direction of the sunlight.

"Push is the sun of human endeavor," made Edison, Roosevelt, Mark Twain and a thousand others. Pull never made any man.

"Push is the Almighty in man."

C.P.R. President Talks on Thrift to Boy Scouts

Thrift is a word which is said to have come into the English language over a thousand years ago from the Scandinavian. It is the noun of which "thrive" is the verb, and suggests that success and saving go together. The very word THRIFT is a good word to look at. It is an understanding word and at once makes one think of sturdy simplicity, the kind of quality which one associates with a Boy Scout. How different in appearance is its opposite EXTRAVAGANCE, a word which at once suggests as ostentatious irregular character, boastful as well as wasteful.

Service to Community.
Now thrift means saving money and mislaid means saving money, but they are not the same kind of saving. The thrifty person saves money for a purpose, he saves money for himself. The thrifty person saves so as to have a bank account against bad times. Thrift has for its object independence and security, and is therefore in accordance with the Scout law. But miserliness is purely selfish, whereas a Scout is told to be thrifty so that among other things he may have money with which to help others when they need it. The Scout must be careful not to carry his thrift too far. You usually find that the thrifty person has a bank account, whereas the miser keeps his money in a stocking where it can do no good because it is not kept in circulation. The thrifty person puts his money where it draws interest, thus adding to what he already has got, and also performing a service to the community.

By letting the community have the use of his money while he is not spending it, the thrifty person does a service to the community for which the community is willing to pay interest. The community, however, has just as little use for the miser as for the spendthrift.

FATHER POINT

Father Point Lighthouse. Foghorn Station and Keeper's House.

Father Point is a little Quebec cape jutting out into the St. Lawrence where it still is an ocean. It is here that the immigrant from European countries during the summer months gets his first human touch with Canada and Canadians.

Father Point would not appeal to the ordinary tourist or holiday maker. It is off the beaten track and only reached by car from Rimouski. Its charm is merely that of hundreds of other French Canadian villages which are more accessible. The fresh breezes blow from off the St. Lawrence as they do upon countless other fishing villages along the river shore. This place is a haven for the tired, the brain-taxed, the overworked and neurotic in its meditative calm and brooding hush.

The great interest in the little hamlet is for those who go down to the sea in ships. Near the extremity of the point a modern lighthouse has been erected which each night flashes its warning light across twenty miles of water. In close proximity is the giant foghorn blasting its message when fog enshrouds the light. Upon the hill stands a wireless station which receives advice of every vessel entering the Gulf before it reaches the river. A coastguard and life saving station completes the precautions for the preservation of vessel and man upon the water.

But greatest interest centres in the "Eureka," the sturdy little government pilot boat which leaves its pier on the point to take out a river guide for all before it leaves. This Quebec or Montreal. When the wireless report is received of the approach of a vessel all eyes are turned riverwards and glasses and telescopes focused upon the speck on the horizon following as it takes shape over the rim of the sea.

Larger and larger looms up what turns out to be a giant passenger liner of the Canadian Pacific bound with a heavy freight of human souls for the St. Lawrence ports.

When about half a mile away or so the pilot boat meets its mammoth sister. The pilot is, however, not the only man to go on board. There is the inspector of immigration, the Colonization Agent of the Canadian Pacific and the representatives of the passenger department of the same company, all having the same object, assisting the steamship passengers, preparing them for debarkation, and facilitating the actual landing. And so it is a goodly little number the pilot boat takes out on its short voyage.

It takes the speedy little craft but a short time to reach the big liner alongside, the incongruity of the two, forcibly suggesting another interpretation of "Dignity and Impudence." Even the graphic picture of the crowding, the decks and hanging in a dense mass over the side eagerly watching, wondering, and appraising.

The rope ladder is dropped from the liner and swings out from the side at each hoist of the vessel. The pilot seizes it and climbs up hand over hand to be followed by the others who are to make the trip with the newcomers up the river. Remarks and light banter are interchanged, there is much waving of hands and fluttering of handkerchiefs, and the cheeriest of spirits greet the little boat as it comes away. The Titan of the seas appears to recede, and in the echo of shouts and cheers the pilot boat turns her nose to the shore and faces and figures become obscure blurs.

GREEK TORTURED, THEN ROBBED

Stephen Vassalopoulos, who operates fifteen concessions at Brighton Beach, has a monstrosity almost as long as his name, and of which he is inordinately proud. Early on the morning of August 15, when he was awakened by four bandits, who had forced entry to his main office, and they beat him up and forced him back up to the bed. The thieves were supplied with a roll of surgeon's adhesive tape, two inches wide, and they used this to plaster tightly Stephen's mouth and eyes until he resembled an Egyptian mummy. Then, after tying him securely, they went to work on the safe, but could not solve the combination, so they took the plaster strips off his eyes and ordered him to open the safe. He demurred, no more of the tape was reported to the bed and began pulling out Stephen's lustrant moustache, hair by hair, until he was left with a bald spot. When he could stand the pain no longer Stephen opened the safe, which was robbed of its contents and money. Stephen spent an hour twisting out of his bonds, and summoned the police. The Greek, who is a native of Greece, will have to shave off his moustache, as one side of it was pulled out.

GIANT AIR SHIP EXPLODES IN SKY

More Than Forty of Giant Dirigible's Crew Plunged Into the Humber Following the Disaster. Lieutenant tenant Wann, Navigating Officer, Saved, but Cannot Tell How the Explosion Occurred.

Hull, England, August 25.—Divers began at dawn this morning to explore the fire twisted wreck of the Z.R.2 which last evening exploded—above this city and fell into the Humber, carrying with her more than 40 of her crew. Only one member of the U.S. crew, Norman A. Walker, a diver, and four British, Flight Lieut. A. H.
Wann; Ernest Davies, air man; H.
Bateman, scientific assistant; and Walter Potter, mechanic, survived the disaster that is a twinkling changed the trial cruise of the airship into a ghastly tragedy.

"During the hours of darkness" that followed the collapse and destruction of the Z.R.2, tugs stood by the wreckage, and keen eyes scanned the water for any bodies that might have been dislodged by the tide that flowed over all that remained of what was yesterday Great Britain's mightiest dirigible, which officials expected to turn over to the United States navy today.

It was believed that the wreckage of the aerial dreadnought held the bodies of 20 British and 15 U.S. officers and enlisted men who were engaged in the final test of the machine.
No Hope for Crew

All hope that there might be other survivors of the disaster was dispatched during the night. The wreckage fell only 200 yards from the shore and the six gondolas, in which most of the airship's personnel was riding, sank immediately to the bottom of the Humber.
The men in the gondolas, as it was believed, would have little chance to escape after the dirigible struck water, as the weight of the engines and machinery quickly carried the ruined structure beneath the waves.

Experts here are at a loss to account for this greatest of peace-time air disasters.

Girders Buckled
Residents of Hull, who were watching the Z.R.2 when her cruise came to its sudden and tragic end, declared it seemed when the craft attempted to make a sharp turn during a spec-test, some of her girders buckled and broke, probably because of a strain too heavy for the structure to bear.
Some members of the crew appear to have this same idea of the cause of the air disaster.

Expert Eyewitness
Charles Herbert Brown, of the United States army, who was on the Z.R.2 as an eye witness of the disaster, "I remember," he said today, "that the Z.R.2 was moving in a peculiar manner, the nose of the dirigible showing an unusual tendency to drop down. I knew once that something was wrong and watched the machine carefully. In less than two minutes the huge envelope broke in two and fell in flames, ran to the riverside, where I secured a tug and went to the place where the wreck had fallen. I put out a motor boat and went into the gun cockpit in the aft section of the airship and then swam along the keel. I secured the body of one man and turned it over to the boatman, but could find nothing else."

Dies In Hospital
The body of Lieut. Charles Little, one of the United States officers, was today at the Hull Infirmary, where he died after being removed from the wreckage of the Z.R.2.

The body of Lieut. Marcus Esterly, another United States victim, at a mortuary and both were being held pending an inquest, which probably will not be held until attempts to take other bodies from the ruins have been made.

Harbor officials today expressed doubt that many bodies would be recovered unless they were held fast in the wreckage or were imprisoned in the gondolas. They said they feared the tide and the swift current of the Humber would carry them away.

Large quantities of wreckage were found this morning to have been floated up the river by the tide and little was visible outside of the hull of the airship. A diver who went down early this morning failed to locate any material.

Maxfield's Body Found
Men engaged in the work of salvage reported at the United States consulate here, this morning, that they had found a body believed to be that of Commander H. Maxfield, in charge of the United States contingent aboard the Z.R.2, several miles below the city.

Commander's Statement Hull, England, August 25.—Most of the members of the crew were killed by the explosion which followed the buckling and snapping of girders amidships, declared Lieut. A.
H. Wann, in command of the craft as navigating officer at the time of the disaster, in a statement to the Associated Press today.

Lieut. Wann said the ship had run beautifully at 60 knots an hour until she had reduced the speed to 50 knots when there came a violent groaning sound. He thought several of the girders broke. The whole thing happened in five seconds.

Happened Quickly
"There was no sign of anything wrong when we passed over Hull," he added. "The everything happened suddenly. I was in sole control at the time."

"Before the moment of the accident the craft had been sailing perfectly.
She had been sailing through various difficult tests and her speed had been reduced, but suddenly as she was crossing the estuary of the Humber, I heard a grinding and cracking of girders and the airship pitched forward, nose down from an even keel."

Dropped Like a Stone
"As soon as humanly possible, I emptied the water ballast to enable the craft to change its normal position, but at this instant a tremendous explosion occurred. The great ship seemed to halt for a moment and then it dropped like a rock. The concussion threw me down in the car where I was piloted by the wreckage. The section of the craft in which I was riding remained above the water after the ship plunged into the Humber, and was rescued after being imprisoned for 15 minutes. That is all I am able to say."

Lieut. Wann denied local reports that he had heroically plunged the Z.R.2 into the river rather than on the shore, which was crowded by thousands of spectators. The disaster occurred so quickly, he said, that any such action was impossible.

There will be no increase in the street car fares in Montreal, stated Judge Cyr, chairman of the tramways commission on Wednesday.

LIGHT ON CHINESE LIFE AND CUSTOMS

At the union service, Sunday evening last, (Dr.) Trimble gave a very interesting talk on "First Impressions of China." As has already been mentioned in these columns, Dr.
Trimble is on their way back to their work in China, after spending the fortnight on the continent.

Mrs. Trimble regards the whole Chinese nation as a contradiction, and it would be true to say that she sees coming from different parts of the Inland Empire to give the same story of the customs, beliefs and very so much. They have the largest population, and yet they are the narrowest people in many ways that can be found.

On first arrival, one is impressed by seeing practically everything done by man power, which is cheaper than machinery. An idea of the toll of life that is exacted by these customs may be gained by the fact that the life of a rickshaw-coolie in five years after he begins active service and a sedan chair-coolie only lives seven years.

The language is a conundrum, and one can scarcely feel at ease even after a good deal of practice with the expressions that are used. But as regards travel, a Canadian girl would be safer travelling in China alone than she would be in any part of the continent; she would stand less chance of being molested or insulted than she would be in travelling from here to Calgary.

Although China is nominally a Republic, it is really government of the officials, by the officials, for the officials. It is the recognized right of everyone in China to graft, or work the "squeeze" on practically all occasions.

The Chinese have the greatest respect for everyone, and a civil question will invariably bring a civil answer. They do not have any regard for privacy, however, but very largely in spite of the almost constantly recurring civil wars. There are very few policemen, and very few are plainclothes men, and they are gathered together on holiday occasions.
There are a few soldiers around but they are more of a hindrance than a help in keeping order.

There is the greatest reticence to admitting new and this is largely the result of their ancestral reverence, which forbids them to make any move which would seem to slant the achievement of one of their ancestors or seem to minimize what he had done.
The people are susceptible almost to excess. The costumes of the men are rather cumbersome, but the women are plainly and sensibly dressed.
Footbinding is as prevalent as ever in the interior of the country, but has disappeared to large extent around the frontier cities and in the schools.

Chinese scenery is very beautiful, the hills being covered with dense vegetation, but there is every variety of small in China. Automobiles are not used and rounding is given practically no attention. Even a good Chinese road will not be more than about three feet wide and most of them are a great deal narrower. Bridges are seldom more than single poles thrown across a stream.

Love is an unknown virtue in that land, and Chinese marriages are noting more than civil contracts, that in nine cases out of ten are made without the young people having even once seen each other before they are married. Marriages usually take place before they have passed out of childhood.

Mrs. Trimble drew attention to the Oriental customs that still prevail in China, and which bear such striking resemblance to the imagery made use of in the Bible; take, for instance, the burial customs, the seating at feasts and many other things.

The great needs of China are sympathy, love and teaching. With able leadership, she is capable of becoming a world power and will some day measure up to the full standard of the great nations of the earth.

WOULD DISTRIBUTE SEED TO FARMERS WITH POOR CROPS

Edmonton, August 19.—The first move by the provincial government in the way of relief for farmers in the drought-stricken district is a decision to distribute fall rye for immediate seeding. Premier Greenfield announced this morning that such a policy had been decided upon and would be put into operation at once, agents being sent out by the department of agriculture on Saturday to a half dozen centres in Southern Alberta.

Credit is to be advanced to farmers whose crops have failed, to the extent of $50 each, for which security will be taken non the same terms as in the use of seed wheat. This will be enough to seed about 50 acres of land.

The arrangements apply only to unorganized territory, so far as the government is concerned, a similar distribution in the organized districts to be taken care of by the municipalities. In the latter case the loans will be guaranteed by the government.
Consent of the Dominion government to be responsible for advances of money for seed wheat on unpatented lands on unpatented homesteads in unorganized territory has been received, and homesteaders on unpatented lands in the organized districts will come under the care of the municipalities.

DISCERN SIGNS OF BUSINESS REVIVAL

More Optimistic Feeling Now Prevails
Regarding Trade Prospects

A more optimistic feeling is abroad among the trade prospects, and the ready preparations to take advantage of it are indicated in many ways.
Outstanding at the present time is the upward movement in the price of securities, which goes to show that investors are now bringing out their idle money. Bond prices are generally the first to improve in an upward market, preceding stocks in their recovery. Wholesale trade, while only slightly more active, reflects a much more cheerful appearance, and with the crop outlook, a satisfactory one, there is every indication that the early fall will see the long expected improvement. All signs go to show that staple lines are likely to return to normal conditions before long.

This opinion has been passed on to a local financial house by a large New York financier in business correspondence. He states that conditions generally across the border show an improvement in sentiment, but business is spotty. Referring to interviews with four large commercial concerns, he says that business up to 75 per cent. of normal, and showed signs of improving, while the other two stated that there was absolutely no business at all. He intimates that lines showing improvement would appear to be the dealing in necessaries, whereas lines that might be considered strictly as luxuries seem to be at a standstill.

The smelter mines and works of the International Nickel Company, at onto, at Copper Cliff, will close down on September 1.

What's a Guarantee?

Our idea of a guarantee is that the manufacturer gives one—which lasts any tags and loopholes—believes in his product.

So much so that he stands ready to make good any loss suffered by the purchaser through defective material or workmanship.

It's mainly because of the guarantee that goes with them that we are selling and recommending Ames Holden "Auto-

Of course, we know they give the cheapest mileage too—that they are dependable tires for any make of car, anywhere. But it's the guarantee that we talk about most. It's the straight and candid, without time or mileage limits. It shifts our responsibility on to the manufacturer and he lives up to every letter of it. Come in and let us tell you about the guarantee that goes with

Dr. C. F. Dorsey, of this city, acted as judge at the Baby Show in connection with the Baby Fair, and escaped without having his hair pulled or suffering any other physical injuries.
In fact the Edmonton Journal report speaks in glowing terms of the scientific and methodical manner in which the awards were made. There were thirty-two contestants, eighteen in class "A" under one year, and fourteen in class "B," one year and under two. It was a real baby show.

B. Munro was fined $5 and costs last week for harboring vicious dogs and required to take out licenses for the brutes. It appears that the accused has three coyote hounds which attacked a companionable and inoffensive dog owned by E. M. Munro, of Balnes, and inflicted injuries from which the dog died last week. These hounds had been proving a nuisance in other ways and it was time that some action should be taken to restrain them.

The public hailed Madame X as one of the greatest plays ever presented.

Competent critics say that the picture is even better. But we want your opinion. We want you to see what we consider the finest part Pauline Frederick has ever played and the most moving, the most exalting, the most pathetic story ever screened.
